TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 31, 1899.

Complaint is made that the British are using dum-dum bullets in South Africa. That cannot be—the dum-dum is the missile that does not "bores."

Sharks are said to be very numerous in the bay just now. Judging by the experiences of some people, there are lots of them around on land also.

Wells are being sunk on the sugar plantations in Hawaii. That ought to be a good way to get at the truth of the sugar situation. The yards of the stock jobbers are too confining to furnish any genuine information.

Another suicide by the popular gas route is reported across the bay. Can it be possible that the gas company over their holds out inducements for the dependent to commit self-destruction in that particular way? There is good money in it for those in the gas business, for the suicide always gives the meter a chance to have its hands full.

There are 5,000 theaters in the United States and about 65,000 actors. If this sort of thing keeps up, Shakespeare will have more money than a historic prophecy when he said, "All the world's a stage." There were only three theaters in the country a hundred years ago, so at the present ratio of increase it will not take long to gather everybody into the fold.

The objections to locating the new library in Lafayette Square because "it is bad taste to crowd all the public buildings into the center of the city" convey all the argument necessary as to why the structure should go there. If there is a civic institution more than another that should be centrally located, it is the library, and the proposition to place it in the eastern part of the city is palpably illogical.

THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.
The possibility of a fatal outcome of the illness of Vice-President Hobart, whose death is hourly expected and may, in fact, take place before this article appears in type, is news that will be received with regret by every American citizen. Although the office of Vice-President of the United States is not one that affords its incumbent many opportunities for the exercise of public power, it is nevertheless the second highest in the land and carries with it the possibility of a succession to the Presidency. As presiding officer of the United States Senate, the Vice-President is privileged to cast the deciding vote in the case of a tie, but opportunities of this nature are so rare that they are scarcely even worth consideration when reviewing the possibilities of the office.

As Vice-President, therefore, Mr. Hobart has accomplished all that he possibly could. It cannot be disputed that the placing of his name upon the ticket added much strength to the national cause during the campaign three years ago, for he is an extremely popular man, and furthermore his nomination secured to the Eastern States a full representation and successfully balanced the nomination by the convention of a Western man for President. Had Mr. Hobart's health remained good, there was every probability that he would have been nominated for the Vice-Presidency next year on exactly the same lines that are about to lead to the choice of McKinley as Republican standard-bearer for the second time. During the past few months, however, it became apparent that he would not be able to stand the strain of another contest, and his name has therefore been withdrawn from every political prospectus although at times it cropped up in the form of a strong probability.

Now, however, the leaders must look elsewhere, and although the Western States are bidding for the honor, it is extremely doubtful that it can be conceded to this part of the country, owing to the traditions of party politics requiring that the candidates for President and Vice-President shall represent different sections. It seems strange to hear McKinley classified as a Western man, but we must remember that we look at the situation from our standpoint, whereas the East has always drawn the line of demarcation at the western boundary of New York. We must therefore forego our ambitions until some more propitious occasion, and if the present Republican program goes through, we will not have long to wait. Roosevelt of New York will in all probability be the Presidential nominee in 1904, at which time the Pacific Coast will have its opportunity. For the coming campaign, though, we must be satisfied with the selection of some Eastern candidate.

OUR FINANCIAL STANDING.

Governor Gage is in receipt of the report of the State Bank Commissioners, showing the condition of the various fiduciary institutions at the close of business on July 31, 1899. The document, which has only just left the printer's hands, is bristling with valuable statistical information and is of particular interest at this time, because it presents another strong piece of evidence of the over increasing prosperity of the State.

The investigations of the Commissioners show that there are 252 banking institutions in actual operation in the State, 53 being savings, 176 commercial, 15 private and 25 National banks. They call attention to the fact that the net increase in deposits for the last twenty-four months has been $50,825,755.02—more than $2,000,000 per month. Such increase is distributed in almost equal proportions between the commercial, National and savings banks, both in the city and the country, and is a splendid showing, considering the fact that the State is only just recovering from the financial depression of 1893 and has passed through two dry years. As the Commissioners say, it demonstrates California's great recuperative powers and producing capacity, and also shows that our financial institutions are generally well managed.

The tables show the total resources of the banks to be $255,448,363.92, distributed as follows: San Francisco savings banks, $12,401,234.99; interior savings banks, $17,318,022.79; San Francisco commercial banks, $71,845,940.72; interior commercial banks, $64,151,253.22; private banks, $2,576,618.62; National banks, $53,531,841.01. The total loans on real estate foot up $107,104,338.41, the actual money on hand is $11,936,026.03, while $24,812,673.36 is due from other banks.

Seventeen banks are in liquidation, San Francisco being credited in this connection with the Pacific Bank, People's Home Savings Bank, Odd Fellows' Savings Bank and California Savings and Loan Society. During the past year the following banks went under: Mendocino Discount Bank, Union Savings Bank of San Jose, County Bank of San Luis Obispo, and the Bank of Fresno, while five State banks retired and paid their depositors in full. Nine commercial State banks and one National bank have been added to the list since July 31, 1898.

The showing is a creditable one in every way, and should certainly be satisfying to any inquirers as to our financial standing. The steady increase both in depositors and the amounts paid in, the large loans on real estate and the scarcity of failures all bespeak a most prosperous condition of business here, and there need no longer be any speculation on the lines of whether or not confidence has returned.

President Wheeler's tour of inspection of the various educational institutions of the State shows that he is a thoroughly practical man. Instead of relying upon official reports or stereotyped information, he is seeing everything for himself, which is after all the only real way to get at the truth or merits of a situation.

It is said that a man's virtues are never properly extolled until they are inscribed upon his tombstone. But judging by some of the lavish write-ups of the candidates across the bay, they are getting their hands ahead of time. It must be admitted, though, that some of them are practically "dead ones" already.

It is to be hoped that in making the rounds for the Sunday school canvases an advance crop of fish story tellers was not developed. It would be hard work to find a good little boy who would say that he does not go to Sunday school, and yet the class returns show that there is a big lot somewhere.

LAWYER NUSBAUMER IN THE ROLE OF SVENICALI.

There was a lively war between Attorney Emil Nusbaumer and Attorney McKike in Judge Ellsworth's court yesterday when the Merritt vs. Merritt petition suit came up to be set for trial.

The altercation was occasioned by the action of Mrs. Mary Webster Merritt in her capacity as Attorney McKike's client. After some talk Attorney McKike brought his client around to his view of the matter. He appeared in court this morning to do so with the case.

Attorney McKike began the attack. Addressing the Court, he stated that Attorney Nusbaumer had been using his hands on Mrs. Merritt and had induced her to sign a paper agreeing that the case should not be set for trial. He was certain that the paper was signed by Mrs. Merritt, and he alleged that it was written on a sheet of paper coming from his office. Incidentally the letter-head had been carefully torn.

In conclusion, Mr. McKike said that Mr. Nusbaumer had no right to use his hands on Mrs. Merritt. He then denied the bulk of every statement Mr. McKike had made. Mr. Nusbaumer then acknowledged the letter and alleged to have been received by Mr. McKike from Mrs. Merritt. Furthermore, the paper on which the letter was written had not come from his office, nor had he induced Mrs. Merritt to sign it. Whatever action she had taken in the matter was of her own free will and not by his suggestion or influence.

At this juncture Judge Ellsworth interrupted the controversy by remarking that there was no use in the matter being further, as it had apparently been settled. It seemed to be that Mrs. Merritt was influenced by two spells instead of one, and she had readily agreed to her attorney's views when she visited his office.

BEAUTIFUL HOME IN THE COUNTRY.

The Tompkins Farm Has Been Completely Changed By Mrs. Wallace.

The last vestige of the old Gilbert Tompkins place at San Leandro is disappearing this week, when the barns that were built at such great expense were moved away. The barns were sold at auction on Saturday last under the order of Mrs. Wallace, mother of Edna Wallace, the actress, who is the new owner of the Southern Star farm.

The structures were purchased by different residents in the neighborhood of San Leandro, under agreement that they should be removed from the premises in fifteen days, and all week people have been at work sawing the big buildings in halves and quarters and moving them off to their own premises.

Mrs. Wallace resides on the premises, and the work of improvement is going on rapidly and in a way that is making the original residents of San Leandro open their eyes with amazement. It is only $100,000 to be put into the place, in the shape of improvements, and fully one-half of that has already been placed.

The old Gilbert Tompkins residence has been moved off the corner of the ranch, and a new house that cost $30,000 was erected for the home of the Tompkins. The house is a beautiful one, and now the work is going on upon a lodge that is to stand at the gateway of the property. This lodge is to be a picture of the style of the English country residence, and will bar the entrance of those who have no business in that locality.

A new water works is being erected, and a reservoir that will hold nearly 200,000 gallons of water is in course of construction.

A complete water and fire system will then be added to the house and outbuildings.

All of the relics of the days when Gilbert Tompkins tried to make a fortune breeding fancy horses have been removed. There is nothing left about the place now, and the stables, which were large, handsome and well stocked, do not resemble the great barns and training stables of the days of the Southern Star farm.

Roadways are being graded through all parts of the ranch, and drives are being built, and everything is being done that will make it an ideal country home. The stables are being stocked with roadsters and handsome farm horses in place of the runners and trotters that formerly occupied the stalls. Coaching rigs and driving traps are taking the place of the sulkes and training cages. The old manure pits have been completely removed, and in a few months more it will all be gone. The aesthetic beautification of the grounds will eradicate that which the ruins of winter and the sun of spring have started flowers and grass to covering the old scars in the soil.

Bowers will supercede the equine swimming tanks that gave the Southern Star its unique reputation, and it is even said that a superb motor car will be purchased. The eye of the popular little actress, the old Southern Star Farm, with its great reputation for fancy horses and racing money, is rapidly disappearing, and a wonderful country home is growing, like which there are few in Alameda County.

PROFESSOR WICKSON HONORED.
A high compliment is paid Prof. B. J. Wickson, of the College of Agriculture of the University of California, in a government document just issued. It is a report of the Division of Pomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, entitled, "A Revised Catalogue of the Fruits of California." The bulletin is a revision of a former catalogue prepared by the American Pomological Society, in Pomologist C. E. Brackett's letter of transmission to Secretary Wilson is the following paragraph:

"In view of the lack of knowledge of soil, climate, and elevation of the Pacific Coast region, it was thought advisable to make a special investigation of the pomological conditions in that section, and Professor B. J. Wickson, of California, was accordingly appointed a special agent of this division for the purpose of making a special study of the fruit growing in that section. Professor B. J. Wickson of the University of California, was appointed by the pomologist to prepare the report on the fruit growing in that section. The report is a most valuable service."

falls a victim to the arts of Faust, but she cannot be ruled with dignity and pathos. In the scene where she discovers that she has killed her mother in giving her what she supposed was merely a sleeping potion, Miss Gillette did a strong and convincing bit of emotional acting.

In accordance with the Valentine of Card Brown, the scene was overdone. As the soldier brother of the Guards, Mr. Derch was a virile and picturesque figure. In the scene where he returns from the war do learn of his mother's death and his sister's shame, and again in the duel with Faust, in which he is killed, Mr. Derch brought out the anguish and wrath of Valentine in a manner artistic indeed.

The electrical effects, to which the play owes so much of its impressiveness, were skilfully and judiciously used. The demons in the fourth act and the beautiful tableau in which Marguerite is shown among the angels were singularly well adapted to the play.

"Faust" is billed for the week at the Dewey, and it is certain to be played to high houses nightly, for the Dewey patrons lack the appreciation of artistic work that they have always shown heretofore.

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE FOUND AT FRESNO.

Mad Randlett and Etta Durning, the two young girls who ran away from Oakland in company with Harry Thompson, recently, have been located near Fresno, Cal. LETTERS GRANTED ON A LARGE ESTATE.

There was no contest this morning when the application of Mrs. Jessie M. Russell for letters of administration on the estate of her deceased husband, James M. Russell, came up for a hearing before Judge Hall.

When the application was filed it was rumored that Miss E. A. Brown, who was in the employ of Russell about twenty years ago, would oppose the daughter's petition, on the ground that there was a will. Yesterday, however, there were no contestants in court, and letters were granted to Mrs. Russell.

The estate consists of real property in this city and San Francisco and personal property, all of which amounts to about $10,000.

Mrs. Russell's bond was fixed at $3,000. The two other children, J. Jerome Russell and his wife, and J. Weston Russell, of Dakota, declined to having letters granted to their sister. The matter settled that she had been unable to find a will, although she had searched among her father's private papers and in his strong box. W. E. Davis represents the heirs.

Forfeited Their Bail.
J. Cataldi and A. Belegrial who were charged with violating the game laws of the State forfeited their bail, which amounted to $5,000, and fled from the city treasury to that amount.

The two men were charged with having stolen a car and with having been found in their possession. They had been tried and convicted their fines would have had to be paid to the Fish Commission. The State law says nothing on the subject of forfeiture, however, and Clerk Homsey, after consulting with the Court and the Prosecuting Attorney, paid the forfeiture into the City Treasury.

"Peace will ensue certainly but if a military government is decreed war will continue to the end. The United States must make a request of the Philippines and $60,000 to maintain order there after war."

"Gonzales and the Filipino generals know what General Oles forthcoming campaign is to be. They only smile and say it will make no impression on the country."

"What do they say of the Philippine situation in Manila?"

"I spoke with a number of Spanish statesmen and generals who had had experience in the Philippines. They said that the United States had found the subjugation of the Philippines not such an easy matter as the Filipinos would have it be."

"The Filipinos have offered to release the Spanish prisoners if Spain will recogwhile anxious to get the soldiers freed, does not want to offend the United States."

CHANCES OF PEACE.

"Do you think peace is coming?"

"That depends on Congress. A quick, honorable settlement would be far more advantageous to the United States than this unending, inconclusive war. But the Filipinos will not stand a military government. They had enough of that from the Spaniards and it never succeeded."

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Licensed Wire.
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Get Together
Club of Brooklyn held its first dinner of Economy at the World's Exposition." Ferdinand W. Peck, Commissioner Gen-

"The Commissioner General of the United States and all the people of this great nation he represents feel that those individuals and societies that by their contributions or by their efforts have rendered possible the development of a symmetrical and economically group have performed a splendid service for their country, which we believe will be recognized by all Christen-

The department presided over by the Soviet Minister of Foreign Affairs, Andrei Gromyko. Such a representation concerns society as a whole, a man in his general relations with his fellow men.

Next, the greatest value of international exhibitions does not lie in the fact alone that they advanced commercial relations between nations, but above all else these exhibitions promote a fraternity among the peoples of the world. When they are to come together, look into each other's faces and become impressed with the great fact of humanity—the brotherhood of all men.

"Expositions are intervals of rest and recreation in the labor of the people that are engaged in the struggle for progress, the units upon which we pause to survey the roads traversed. Man emerges from them strengthened, full of vigor and confidence in his own future. All branches of human activity will derive an equal profit upon the balance sheet upon which we close the book of the past."

"The exposition of 1909 will constitute the synthesis and will determine the philosophy of the twentieth century."
